PERFORMANCE AXLE SETS

Continuing with our tradition of innovation, Crown offers performance axles for both Model 44 and Model 35 axles. Unlike other performance axles, our Model 35 performance axles use the same spline count (27) as the stock axle thus eliminating the need to replace the stock differential with an aftermarket locker or a Model 44 differential thereby reducing the overall cost significantly.

Forged from SAE-4340 high strength alloy steel, the axles are heat treated twice to achieve the desired hardness. The combination of steel and heat treatment results in an axle that exhibits greater tensile and torsion strength. Overall strength is estimated to be at least 30% greater than stock axles, and wear resistance is improved considerably. Due to the hardness of the steel, the splines are rolled, not cut like stock axle. The rolling process maintains the integrity of the steel better than cut splines. Increased strength and longevity make for an axle that can withstand the stresses of driving off-road far better than stock axles.

These axles are sold in pairs, and include the tone rings, seals, bearings, retainers and wheel studs. The following are the part numbers and their applications.
